
WHOLE WORLD OF SPORTS COVERED FOR THE BOSTON AMERICAN BY ITS CORPS OF EXPERTS

HIS TICKET WAS "PHONY"

THE CHICAGO MAN
TRIED TO HOLD DOWN THE FRONT SEAT WITH LAST YEAR'S TICKET

NATIONAL LEAGUE

HOW THE CLUBS STAND.

Club	W.	L.	P.
New York	45	25	10
St. Louis	44	26	10
Philadelphia	43	27	10
Pittsburgh	42	28	10
Chicago	41	29	10
Cincinnati	40	30	10
St. Paul	39	31	10
Brooklyn	38	32	10
Cleveland	37	33	10
Baltimore	36	34	10
San Francisco	35	35	10

RESULTS YESTERDAY.

St. Louis, 4, New York, 3.
Philadelphia, 4, Pittsburgh, 3.
Chicago, 4, Cincinnati, 3.
St. Paul, 4, Brooklyn, 3.
Cleveland, 4, Baltimore, 3.
San Francisco, 4, Boston, 3.

GAMES TODAY.

St. Louis at New York.
Philadelphia at Pittsburgh.
Chicago at Cincinnati.
St. Paul at Brooklyn.
Cleveland at Baltimore.
San Francisco at Boston.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

HOW THE CLUBS STAND.

Club	W.	L.	P.
New York	45	25	10
St. Louis	44	26	10
Philadelphia	43	27	10
Pittsburgh	42	28	10
Chicago	41	29	10
Cincinnati	40	30	10
St. Paul	39	31	10
Brooklyn	38	32	10
Cleveland	37	33	10
Baltimore	36	34	10
San Francisco	35	35	10

RESULTS YESTERDAY.

St. Louis, 4, New York, 3.
Philadelphia, 4, Pittsburgh, 3.
Chicago, 4, Cincinnati, 3.
St. Paul, 4, Brooklyn, 3.
Cleveland, 4, Baltimore, 3.
San Francisco, 4, Boston, 3.

GAMES TO-DAY.

St. Louis at New York.
Philadelphia at Pittsburgh.
Chicago at Cincinnati.
St. Paul at Brooklyn.
Cleveland at Baltimore.
San Francisco at Boston.

The nine and one game the three contending for the National League pennant are playing among themselves will drive the fast crazy if they persist in keeping it up much longer.

One day it is the Cubs leading, the next it is the Giants, and the latter hold the fort today, while the Cubs, who held it yesterday, are now down to third position, having been passed in a single day by both the Giants and the Pirates.

There's going to be a war when a team is forced down two steps in the ladder just when a competitor is one which decided the result of a hard season of ball playing, and it may mean a nail in the hopes of the Cubs and the Pirates, who are the favorites.

Every game at this stage of the contest means disaster to a team's prospects, and before midnight the Pirates may secure that position if the Giants get a turnaround from the Pirates, and make things more complicated than ever.

If the Cubs and the Pirates drop a game now it will be certain destruction to their chances, and the Giants should take the bit in their teeth and go the remaining distance at a gallop.

Yesterday the Giants and the Pirates won, and the Cubs lost, which caused all the change about.

In the American League the Tigers and the Naps gained on Chicago and St. Louis, and the two latter teams did not play and the front pair won games, which pushed them up a bit.

BRIDES CAN PLAY FOR ALE

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 1.—Arthur Britton, the veteran football player, was this afternoon declared eligible by the Yale faculty, who announced that he had passed every scholarship examination.

Bride received for practice this afternoon with the Yale team, and will be played at either guard or tackle this year. Britton's home is in Brooklyn.

YALE FOOTBALL TICKETS.
New Haven, Oct. 1.—The Yale football department announces that application blanks for the Yale-Princeton game at Princeton on November 14, and the Yale-Harvard game here on November 21, will be turned next week and the lists will close on November 4 and 1 respectively.

Frank Jones Ale

Has more real ale goodness in it than any other ale that's brewed in America.

One glass is enough to prove that fact, yet the price is no more than you have to pay for ordinary ale.

5c

YOUNG MAKES BIG GAIN; CARDIO LEADS AMATEURS

Twelve o'clock noon today was the time for closing the great annual voting contest, and from the hour the BOSTON AMERICAN office opened this morning the mail ballots began to arrive. It was evident that a good many voters had been holding back to see how the lead and also for the purpose of fanning their own pet.

A good-sized bunch of votes for Uncle Cy Young brought the returns total close to that of Andy McConnell, the leader in the race for the professional's leading cap. The old fellow's friends, doubtless had many votes up their sleeves from the way he bounces came in early this morning.

Due to a mistake of one of the counters, 3,075 votes received yesterday for Cardio were credited to Carley in the earlier editions today. The mistake has been corrected in this edition.

Owing to the rush of votes to the office it may not be possible to announce the winners in tomorrow's edition, but the complete count will no doubt be made in time to name the most popular ball players on Saturday. An additional force of clerks has been put on the job of counting the votes, so that the lucky winners can be announced as soon as possible. The totals up to yesterday at 4 o'clock are as follows:

PROFESSIONALS.	W.	L.	P.
Cardio	45	25	10
McConnell	44	26	10
Young	43	27	10
St. Louis	42	28	10
Philadelphia	41	29	10
Pittsburgh	40	30	10
Chicago	39	31	10
Cincinnati	38	32	10
St. Paul	37	33	10
Brooklyn	36	34	10
Cleveland	35	35	10
Baltimore	34	36	10
San Francisco	33	37	10
Boston	32	38	10
Washington	31	39	10
Philadelphia	30	40	10
Pittsburgh	29	41	10
Chicago	28	42	10
Cincinnati	27	43	10
St. Paul	26	44	10
Brooklyn	25	45	10
Cleveland	24	46	10
Baltimore	23	47	10
San Francisco	22	48	10
Boston	21	49	10
Washington	20	50	10
Philadelphia	19	51	10
Pittsburgh	18	52	10
Chicago	17	53	10
Cincinnati	16	54	10
St. Paul	15	55	10
Brooklyn	14	56	10
Cleveland	13	57	10
Baltimore	12	58	10
San Francisco	11	59	10
Boston	10	60	10
Washington	9	61	10
Philadelphia	8	62	10
Pittsburgh	7	63	10
Chicago	6	64	10
Cincinnati	5	65	10
St. Paul	4	66	10
Brooklyn	3	67	10
Cleveland	2	68	10
Baltimore	1	69	10
San Francisco	0	70	10

Frank Jones Ale

Has more real ale goodness in it than any other ale that's brewed in America.

One glass is enough to prove that fact, yet the price is no more than you have to pay for ordinary ale.

5c

HANDS MADE OFF ON ANOTHER TRIAL

BY J. C. KERRISON.

There seems to be no such thing as a free lunch in the three-cornered race now resulting between the Shawmut, Franklin and Mudgehook cars in the endurance run of the State Automobile Association. Although each of these cars has covered about 1,000 miles, within 300 miles of the total distance of the A. A. A. tour, they are in precisely the same condition as when they started a week ago last night. All that has been done to them has been to give them lubricants and gasoline, and a single nut or screw having been touched or an adjustment made. It was confidently expected that the risk of yesterday, covering 200 miles in distance, would bring about a change in the conditions. It did not. Each car retained its condition of the previous performance, finishing at the Boston court one hour and forty-five minutes ahead of the other two.

The three cars were checked on the hills, and the record of the trip was found to be as follows: The Shawmut car, which was the first to start, had covered 1,000 miles, and was in the best of condition. The Franklin car, which was the second to start, had covered 950 miles, and was in the best of condition. The Mudgehook car, which was the third to start, had covered 900 miles, and was in the best of condition.

BY W. W. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—After being defeated by British driver Moran in twelve rounds, Eddie Hanlon informed friends that he had fought his last fight. Although he lost the contest, it may be said of Hanlon that he wound up his career in a blaze of glory. He started up hill every inch of the way, showed rare grit to the end of the fight, and was accepted by his friends as a hero. He was not only a fighter, but a man of great courage and determination.

Frank Jones Ale

Has more real ale goodness in it than any other ale that's brewed in America.

One glass is enough to prove that fact, yet the price is no more than you have to pay for ordinary ale.

5c

ENDURANCE RACE CARS OFF ON ANOTHER TRIAL

BY J. C. KERRISON.

There seems to be no such thing as a free lunch in the three-cornered race now resulting between the Shawmut, Franklin and Mudgehook cars in the endurance run of the State Automobile Association. Although each of these cars has covered about 1,000 miles, within 300 miles of the total distance of the A. A. A. tour, they are in precisely the same condition as when they started a week ago last night. All that has been done to them has been to give them lubricants and gasoline, and a single nut or screw having been touched or an adjustment made. It was confidently expected that the risk of yesterday, covering 200 miles in distance, would bring about a change in the conditions. It did not. Each car retained its condition of the previous performance, finishing at the Boston court one hour and forty-five minutes ahead of the other two.

BY W. W. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—After being defeated by British driver Moran in twelve rounds, Eddie Hanlon informed friends that he had fought his last fight. Although he lost the contest, it may be said of Hanlon that he wound up his career in a blaze of glory. He started up hill every inch of the way, showed rare grit to the end of the fight, and was accepted by his friends as a hero. He was not only a fighter, but a man of great courage and determination.

Frank Jones Ale

Has more real ale goodness in it than any other ale that's brewed in America.

One glass is enough to prove that fact, yet the price is no more than you have to pay for ordinary ale.

5c

BIG TRACK AT READY TO TUBE SOLD

BY ED COGSWELL.

"I wish it distinctly understood that the Redfield race track will be sold under the hammer for the mortgage and notes on the property upon after they become due on next January 1st and the property will be sold to the highest bidder for the sum of $200,000."

CONSUMPTION

Dr. Joseph Grady's Persian Nerve Essence is a powerful remedy for all cases of consumption, whether it be in the lungs or in the brain. It is a powerful tonic and restorative, and will cure all cases of consumption, whether it be in the lungs or in the brain. It is a powerful tonic and restorative, and will cure all cases of consumption, whether it be in the lungs or in the brain.

Frank Jones Ale

Has more real ale goodness in it than any other ale that's brewed in America.

One glass is enough to prove that fact, yet the price is no more than you have to pay for ordinary ale.

5c

THE BOSTON AMERICAN

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1908.

EDITORIAL
PAGE OF THE
THE BOSTON AMERICAN

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, OCTOBER 1, 1908

BOSTON AMERICAN

BOSTON,
OCTOBER 1, 1908

PAY DAY AT 26 BROADWAY

Copyright, 1908, by American Journal Examiner

Bryan's Bank
Guaranty Idea—
His Latest

He Calls It a Corollary. Would It
Come YOD?

Copyright, 1908, by American Journal Examiner

Mr. Bryan once loved his pet, Free Silver. He has got rid of that pet. He was very much attached to the Income Tax. He talks about that no longer.

He woke up over night and discovered the Government Ownership idea. He told the whole world, via Madison Square Garden, that the people must own and operate their railroads. Some of his new kind of friends, of the Haskell type, whispered into his ear and he abandoned his Government Ownership pet.

Bryan is quite remarkable as a collector of pets. He reminds one of the fashionable young lady of the period, who has a wide-chested bulldog one week, a curly-haired spaniel the next, after that a marmoset, and then a foreign nobleman.

The Bryan pet just now is what he is pleased to call "The Bank Guaranty" idea. He thinks this will cure everything and everybody. He noticed some time ago that banks were failing—respectable thieves were stealing the people's money. He heard complaints. It didn't take him a minute to invent a new pet idea to solve the whole trouble, and out came the Bank Guaranty idea.

Do you know what it amounts to?

WHEN ANY DISHONEST BANKER STEALS MONEY FROM A DEPOSITOR, THE HONEST BANKERS WILL BE COMPELLED TO PAY IT BACK.

Isn't that splendid, magnificent, far-reaching statesmanship? Isn't it perfectly simple? Doesn't it settle the whole problem of dishonesty?

If a bank president steals, let the honest bankers pay back the money. Honest bankers have plenty of money. What could be simpler?

Why not, in fact, go further and be really logical? If you have a Bank Guaranty in your political platform, why not a Burglar Guaranty? If a burglar steals anything, why not let the honest citizens in town pay the value of the thing stolen? Wouldn't that be simpler than keeping up an efficient police force?

Bryan actually proposes to you people that honest men shall be compelled to repay to depositors any money stolen by dishonest national bankers.

Mind you, this magnificent idea doesn't apply to savings banks or to building and loan companies or to State banks. If you were a savings bank depositor you would not get any guaranty or any repayment in case your money were stolen.

This guaranty idea would be pleasant enough for NATIONAL BANK DEPOSITORS, perhaps.

But does that strike you as sanity in government? Do you think it a very brilliant idea to make of honest bankers a free insurance concern, insuring national bank depositors against loss?

Wouldn't it be better to try to prevent dishonesty in national banks? Wouldn't it be better to advocate earnestly the establishment everywhere of national savings banks, deposits subject to immediate withdrawal at any time? This would give all the citizens of the nation absolute security for their savings. It would give everyone absolute convenience, since each postoffice would be a national savings bank.

Do you suppose that the bank guaranty idea is anything more than the idea of a childish mind dealing with subjects beyond its grasp?

Who—in the long run—would PAY that bank guaranty money? Would it not be the business men that use national banks as a basis of credit?

Compel the national banks to establish a guaranty fund and compel honest, conservative banks to make good the thieving of others. Will not those that apply to the banks for loans HAVE TO MAKE UP THAT GUARANTEE OUT OF INTEREST PAYMENTS?

Is it a brilliant, statesmanlike idea to penalize HONEST MEN to make up for the sins of the DISHONEST?

Look at it another way. YOU are in the habit of paying your bills—grocer's, butcher's and other bills. Some men do not pay your bills. They cheat the dealer, as dishonest bankers cheat the depositor.

Suppose Bryan came along with a grocer's and butcher's guaranty scheme, a benevolent plan which would make YOU, the honest buyer, combine with other honest men to make good the bad debts of the DISHONEST men. And suppose Bryan said to you: "He made troubles in commerce. I have a grand idea. You honest men that pay your bills shall be compelled to pay the debts of the dishonest that dodge, and all will be happy."

Would you not laugh at such a man and say to him: "Plan, if you know how, to make thieves reform. Don't waste time trying to hold honest men responsible for thieves."

Either honorable bankers are legitimate, respectable men, entitled to decent treatment, or they are not.

If they ARE decent men, they should be treated decently and fairly. If they are NOT honest, they should be suppressed.

It is simply another sample of Mr. Bryan's ready-made remedies, product of a mind that has not thought or studied, and that takes up and puts down ideas quite happy and contented about itself, like a marmoset picking up and putting down empty peanut shells in the zoo.

Little Editorials from the People

THE PEERLESS ONE

1896.

THERE was a man—the Peerless One:
He said: "I have a tallman
That sure shall last long among the great.
And place me at the helm of state,
And this Free Silver is the thing
That all this mighty change shall bring.
And this the answer I shall give."
Thus spoke this man—the Peerless One.

1900.

THERE was a man—the Peerless One:
He said: "My mighty mind can win
That silver answer, now so weak,
Must be discarded, so to speak.
Imperialism's now the word,
Slow rippling sound I've never heard,
And with this year I mean to say."
Thus spoke this man—the Peerless One.

1908.

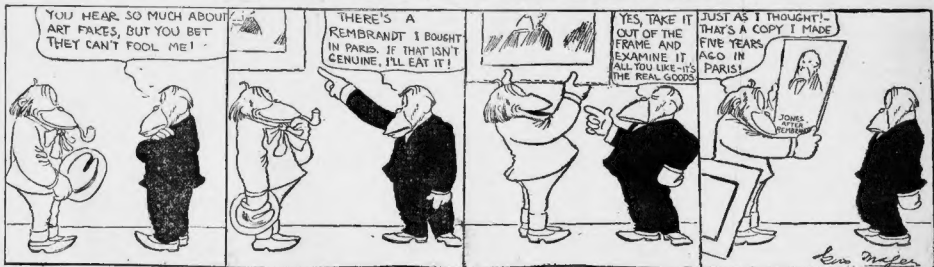

THERE is a man—the Peerless One:
He says: "I have another plan.
The something less than to deny
Free Silver, deny my only joy;
Imperialism, too, must go.
In truth it was a child of woe.
And so I think my next step
Is to deny whatever I can."
—MICHAEL WHEAT.

The Dough Line in Full Swing

BRAGGO THE MONK KNOWS ALL ABOUT ART

Copyright, 1908, by American Journal Examiner

THE HALL-ROOM BOYS

They See the Ball Game as Guests of the Manager

Copyright, 1908, by American Journal Examiner

